I am writing on behalf of Chris Daniels to respond to your information request.

We have been provided with the following information:

All road humps, speed tables and speed cushions that have been installed on RBWM roads would have been designed to meet the relevant Department for Transport design standards. Designs that meet these standards would have been extensively tested by DfT and the Transport Research Laboratory before being given the necessary approvals for use on British roads. This testing would include all vehicles that might reasonably be expected to use such speed reducing features, including motorbikes. I would therefore suggest that this request is re-directed towards the Department of Transport as the concern seems to be about the design of such features.

If you are unhappy with the information we have provided in response to your request please write to:
